

August 17, 2026

To Whom It May Concern:

Aidan Holton was hired as a Student Worker Technician at the Information Technology Service Desk at the University of North Georgia. During his time with our team, Aidan consistently demonstrated professionalism, strong technical aptitude, and an eagerness to learn and grow.

One of Aidan's greatest strengths was his ability to work effectively with others. In an IT support environment, technical knowledge is only part of the job; patience, communication, and customer service are equally important. Aidan demonstrated the ability to communicate clearly with coworkers, faculty, staff, and students with varying levels of technical knowledge. He was always positive and helpful. In addition to his duties, he was tasked with assisting in training newly hired student workers, updating website information, and working to improve documented procedures. These additional duties were above and beyond his job requirements and were met with dedication and eagerness.

Aidan was an invaluable team member, and I am confident that he will prove himself vital to any organization. Aidan is dedicated to adding to his knowledge and supporting customers beyond the role of a student worker. He demonstrated the unique ability to articulate information and ideas in both verbal and written forms. I particularly appreciate Aidan's willingness to take initiative to help our team serve its customers to the highest level of service possible.

Please let me know if you have need for additional information. My personal contact number is 678-758-8119, or Katrena.pardue@ung.edu. I would be happy to discuss Aidan's qualifications and contributions in greater detail.

Sincerely,

Katrena Pardue

Director, IT Communications and Customer Success
ITIL v3
Division of Information Technology
University of North Georgia